AYER'S Sarsaparilla

cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, Catarrh, and all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood; expelling the blood-poisons from the system, enriching and renewing the blood, and restoring its vitalizing power.

During a long period of unparalleled usefulness, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has proven its perfect adaptation to the cure of all diseases originating in poor blood and a weakened vitality. It is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier and blood-food that can be used.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years.

W. H. MOORE.
Durham, Ia., March 2, 1882.

"Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the Rheumatism since. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public."

E. F. HARRIS.
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

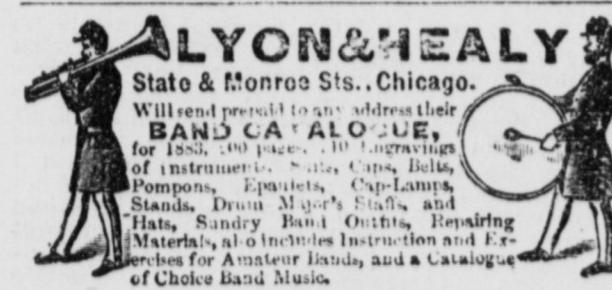

"Last March I was so weak from general debility that I could not walk without help. Following the advice of a friend, I commenced taking AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and before I had used three bottles I felt as well as I ever did in my life. I have been at work now for two months, and think your SARSAPARILLA the greatest blood medicine in the world."

JAMES MARYNARD.
520 West 42d St., New York, July 19, 1882.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

"AT SEA."

I stand by the shore, and look over the sea,
Where sailed my lover away;
Where sailed my lover a year ago—
A weary year and a day.
The tide comes in and the tide goes out,
And the waves are high and low;
The sun comes up and the sun goes down,
And the days are dreary and slow.

Oh, love, dear love! is there never a wind,
To waft you home to me?
Is there never a breeze to waft my voice
To where you sail on the sea?
Oh, the sea is wide and the sea is deep,
And rolls 'neath the moon and sun;
The days are long and the days are cold,
And a gloom has touched each one.

No more for me till I see your face
Will the sunshine reach my heart;
Nor the skies above shine gay and blue
While you and I are apart.
So set your sails from the distant shores
And turn you back to me.
And bring me back your own true heart
From over the cruel sea.

—M. D. Brine, in Our Continent.

Not in the Ranks.

The old army overcoat that used to be such a familiar sight on our streets is one of the rarest now; indeed it is so seldom seen that we involuntarily turn and gaze after it, as something that brings sad and often cruel memories. The other day an old man wearing a coat of this kind, which reached to his heels, stopped at a cottage a little way out of town and asked leave to rest a while on the porch.

"I'm a bit tired," he said to the woman who opened the door, "an if you don't mind I'll sit here and rest myself a spell."

"You're welcome," said the woman, kindly, with a glance at the martial blue. Then she left him alone, but after a little returned with a bowl of coffee and a plate of white biscuit.

"Eat," she said gently; "I had a boy who was a soldier."

"But I'm not a soldier," answered the old man. "I never was a soldier; my boy went to the war and was—was killed. He was all I had, too. This coat was his; seems like he's near me when I have it on. I gave him to his country; the handsomest and bravest boy he was, too, in the whole regiment. God bless him. He did his duty, died on the field, and this coat was all that came back to his poor old dad. No; I never was a soldier."

The woman went in and brought out some cake, and the whitest honey, and added it to the coffee and biscuit.

"Are you alone in the world?" she asked.

"Oh, no," answered the old man, cheerfully; "I've got a sister, but she's old and lame, and she has a daughter that is sickly and ailing. You see, I have them to work for, and they're a sight of comfort to me. Many's the time I'd have broke down since Mary died but for them two poor critters. Mary was my wife, ma'am; she was a master hand to nuss sick folks, and she thought after Tim died as it were her duty to go into the hospital service and nuss the soldiers, and she died these sixteen years ago, but she did a heap of good work first. Many a soldier has kissed her shadow on the wall! Mary, darlin', God wanted ye in the ranks up there! I've often wished that I had been a soldier, if only to be fit for the little mother and Tim; but I never was."

He drank the coffee, ate the good food thankfully and offered to pay for it with some hoarded pieces of old worn silver, but the woman shook her head.

"Put back your money. My boy was a soldier," she said.

"But I am not a soldier—well—well," as he looked in her face, "I thank you and I take it for his sake!"

He wished good-night to his kind entertainer and turned away. As he walked off slow and limping, bent by infirmity, the long skirt of his army overcoat struck bright and blue against the splendor of the sunset; he shaded his eye with one trembling hand and looked wistfully at the red and amethyst door that seemed to open in the west. What saw he there? A little, round-shouldered woman with a small, homely face; a lank, overgrown boy, with sparse, red hair. Ay! and of such as these are angels made! So watching, he passed down into the shade and disappeared.

The woman at the gate looked after him.

"No soldier!" she said, gently, "but I wonder if the boy who died on his first battle-field ever fought as he has, or sacrificed as much to his country? All the soldiers didn't go into the war with flying flags and rolling drums; some of them stayed at home and fought harder battles. I'm glad I gave him a bite and a sup! He is a soldier and a brave one, too, and one day he will know it!"

And I think she was right.—Detroit Free Press.

Stick to the Broomstick.

Did you ever see a woman throw a stone at a hen? It is one of the most ludicrous scenes in every-day life. We recently observed the process—indeed we paid more attention than the hen did, for she did not mind it at all and laid an egg the next day as if nothing had happened. In fact, that hen will now know for the first time that she served in the capacity of a target. The predatory fowl had invaded the precincts of the flower bed, and was industriously pecking and scratching for the nutritious seed or the early worm, blissfully unconscious of impending danger. The lady now appeared upon the scene with a broom. This she drops and picks up a rocky fragment of the Silurian age, then makes her first mistake—they all do it—of seizing the projectile with the wrong hand. Then, with main force a thought, she makes the further blunder of swinging her arms perpendicularly instead of horizontally—thereupon the stone flies through the air, describing an irregular elliptical curve, and strikes the surface of the earth as far from the hen as the thrower stood at the time. In a course due west from the same, the hen then bearing by the compass north-north-east by half east. At the second attempt the stone narrowly missed the head of the thrower herself, who, seeing any further attempt would be suicidal, did what she might have done first, started after the hen with an old and familiar weapon. The moral of which is: Stick to the broomstick.—Providence Herald.

Hot Drinks.

In spite of the universal proverb that heat is life and death is cold, a writer in Knowledge maintains that hot drinks are unnatural, cold drinks natural to man. Notwithstanding this dictum few people will believe it. Very hot drinks may do harm, but cold ones will do more. The effect of moderate heat upon the body is always sanitary; the effect of cold may sometimes be more comfortable but never is entirely wholesome. Neuralgia, rheumatism, etc., are alleviated by hot applications, aggravated by cold. Hot water is found to be one of the best cures for dyspepsia yet discovered, stimulating the blood in the stomach and directing it toward the digestive nerve centers. Weakness and disturbances in the bowels are caused by cold liquids and moderated by hot ones. If hot drinks, like tea, coffee and alcoholic stimulants do harm, it is not because of their specific effects upon the nerves. They do more harm when they are cold, because the heat practically neutralizes their evil effects.

The Last Story About Garfield.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A pamphlet has recently been issued under the authority of the Catholic church in Chicago, in which the following statement is made: "It is not too much to say that if President Garfield had lived Father Hodnett would be a power with his Administration. This was generally believed by all the public men of Illinois. When General Garfield asked Mr. Blaine 'if he was prayed for by the Catholics.' Yes,' said he, 'universally.' Then I will show them tangible recognition if I ever get out of this bed and well enough to do so." We think he would have joined the Catholic Church if spared. He would then be the first Catholic President of the United States. But apart from this, we have it on reliable authority that he intended, if he lived, to ask Father Hodnett to name a representative Catholic for his Cabinet. This would have been simple justice to the millions of Catholics in America. The telegrams from the dying President's bedside to Father Hodnett will show how much he thought of him even in the last agony and throes of death."

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

We are authorized to announce J. D. KEHOE as a candidate for re-election to the office of Representative for Mason County in the General Assembly of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

ED. BULLETIN: Permit me briefly, through your columns, to return my sincere thanks to the many kind friends who have signed calls soliciting me to become a candidate for Representative of Mason County, and in response to said calls I announce myself a candidate, subject to the decision of the Democratic party in the primary election to be held March 10th.

February 22, 1883. A. P. GOODING.

I hereby announce my candidacy for your Representative in the next Legislature, subject to the decision of the Democracy at the primary election, March the 10th. I am in favor of a return to the good old days of the whipping post, and shall make it my business, should I be elected, to see that the subject is brought prominently and squarely before that body. If there is any one thing, more than another, that should have the attention of our Representatives, it is some efficient punishment for petty stealing, &c. If something is not done at once there will not be enough chickens left in Kentucky to run a camp meeting, nor rails enough left to fence in a ten acre lot. I ask every one in favor of the whipping post to cast their vote for me, promising them that I will do all that can be done to get the bill through. GEORGE TAYLOR.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER,

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District.

ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan. 20, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with Kendall's Spavin Cure has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with Kendall's Spavin Cure, one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a very deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO. Brusburgh Falls, Vermont.

NOTICE.

HEMP is quoted at Lexington at $4.50.

A FARM near Lexington was sold a few days ago for $148.85 an acre. It contained one hundred and sixty-six and one-half acres.

MR. J. R. LUMAN's loss by the burning of his distillery near Orangeburg, recently was about $1,200. There was no insurance on the property.

At the last meeting of the Adelphian Circle the following officers were elected for the next quadrant, viz:

Vice President—T. R. Phister.
Secretary—Thomas Saddler.
Editor Adelphian Circle—L. W. Galbraith.

Fire.

About five o'clock this morning the large tobacco barn belonging to Mr. A. Honan, on the Flemingsburg turnpike, near this city, was fired by an incendiary and the building damaged to the amount of about $75. George Graham had a lot of tobacco stored in the barn, which was also damaged. The building and contents were insured in the London and Liverpool and Globe Company, Dr. John T. Fleming, agent.

THE Flemingsburg Times-Democrat says: A gentleman from Cleveland, named Kelly, has been prospecting for oil in this county for some time past. He says he found splendid indications on the farm of Mr. Charles Marshal, near Mt. Carmel, and was very desirous of leasing it for oil purposes, but did not succeed. His theory is that there is an oil belt extending through the eastern portion of this county which is a continuation of the Pennsylvania oil belt, and that it will finally prove rich in oil.

ABOUT two o'clock this morning Mr. C. B. Clift was aroused by a noise in the cellar of his dwelling, and got up in time to discover a man coming out through the cellar window with a basket of coal. He called to the intruder to drop the basket or he would shoot. The basket was dropped instantaneously and the man made away with speed of a race horse, but not until he was recognized by Mr. Clift, who requests us to say that if the individual will call on him he will return the basket filled with coal and a lot of kindling besides and no questions will be asked.

THE lecture last night at the Court House, on the subject: "What shall we laugh at?" by Rev. A. N. Gilbert for the benefit of the sufferers in this community from the recent flood, was a complete success. A large and appreciative audience began assembling at an early hour and by the time announced for the lecture to commence, the large court room was comfortably filled with our citizens. Jailer Fitzgerald had kindly furnished the court room for the occasion and had everything in perfect order. The audience, judging from the frequent manifestations on their part, were perfectly delighted with the lecture. The lecture netted $130 all of which has been turned over to Mayor January, for distribution among the destitute of the city. The entire expense of the lecture amounted to only $2.

Riligious.

We had a short interview with James Hendrixson, a few days since, and learned from him that his stay in this place this spring will only be temporary. Maysville will still be his headquarters. We are sorry.

Ollie Smith, the popular drummer for Hill & Smith, grocers, Cincinnati, will sever his connection with that house and establish a house in Cincinnati as manufacturing agents for foreign and domestic cigars. Two of Maysville's staunch business men will complete the firm. They expect to commence business about April 1st. We wish them much success.

MANCHESTER.

Wm. Stivers, an old and respected citizen of Bentonville died on Tuesday, at about 1 o'clock p. m., of stomach disease. He was the father of L. P. Stivers, of this place.

A child was born to Jonathan Bradford and wife on Sunday morning last. It died at three o'clock p. m., same day.

Geo. W. Nickodemus, of Sprigg Township, delivered his excellent tobacco crop to Owens & Co., at Maysville, on Friday last. He received 11 cents all round for it. George is one of the "crack" tobacco raisers of this neck o' woods.

John Parks, sr., father of John and Charlie Parks, of this place, died on Wednesday afternoon of last week, at his home at Cold Springs, Indiana, with a congestive chill, in the 88th year of his age. Mr. Parks was a former resident of this place, and owned and operated the pottery of A. B. Bates & Co. A few years since he sold out and went to Indiana where he has since made his home. His remains were brought here on Tuesday night and were interred in Odd Fellows' cemetery on Wednesday.

Alf. Lewellen, the livery man, died on Sunday morning last at 10 o'clock, after a short but a severe illness, of acute laryngitis, in the 38th year of his age. During the recent high water Mr. Lewellen was considerably exposed, the water having been in both his house and stable, and from his exposure he caught a severe sore throat which terminated in the disease which ended his life. His suffering were terrible. He was a man of robust build, healthy and strong, and he literally choked to death. He leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss. His remains were taken to Winches-ter, his former home, on Monday for burial.

A SPECIAL from Frankfort says: This morning Judge Major delivered his opinion in the case of the Commonwealth against the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company. This case involved the constitutionality of the act creating a Railroad Commission and the right of that Commission to assess railroads in the State. The Commissioners assessed their property too high and gave them no notice, and from their assessment there was no appeal. The principal point in Judge Major's decision is that the State has a right to tax all railroads in the State in the manner assessed by the Commission.

Craft as a Protester.

Ashland Independent.

Ellis Craft's protestations of innocence excite no surprise here. It is the way he always does. When he went into Proctor's house in this place, a few weeks before the murder of the Gibbons children and Emma Carico, and grossly insulted Mrs. Proctor, and on Mr. Proctor's coming to her rescue, fired shots from his revolver at both of them and escape in the darkness, Wm. Serey arrested him a few minutes later, and he declared he was as innocent of crime he was then arrested for as a new-born babe, calling on the Angels in Heaven to witness his asseveration of innocence, etc., and in fact using almost the same rigmarole, Mr. Serey says, that he used the other day at Grayson. When the grand jury assembled, the Protors were afraid to appear against him, so great was the terror Craft's name, and that of his peculiar gang of friends, had inspired them with, and the jury was compelled, for want of direct evidence, to dismiss the case against him whereupon one of the jurymen, who knew the reputation of the accused for nerve, daring, cheek and skill in escaping punishment, said to him, "Craft, as nothing you can say now will, or can be used against you, as a matter of curiosity and accommodation, please tell us the whole truth about this affair." Craft then, with a twinkle in his cunning eye, proceeded to relate the whole history of the affair, denying nothing, and telling where he threw his revolver in the weeds in a lot near the alley, where it was found and making the missing links in the story plain and clear, notwithstanding he had previously called on high Heaven and the Angels to witness his innocence.

A woman was the only passenger in a Montana stage except her baby, whom she wrapped in her fur cloak, leaving herself unprotected from the zero temperature. The driver saw that she was benumbed and would freeze to death unless roused to violent exercise. He dragged her from the coach and left her by the roadside. "Oh, my baby!" she cried. The driver cracked his whip. The stage flew over the snow with the woman running after. The race was kept up for nearly two miles, when the driver took the mother in again and wrapped his coat around her. He warmed her blood and saved her life.

James Gordon Bennett has a princely income, and spends it extravagantly, but there seldom comes an appeal from distressed humanity that he does not hear and respond to with generosity. He gave more to relieve the distress in Ireland than was given by any other individual, and his name usually appears beside the largest contribution when a call for help comes from the masses.

Dog-Catching in New York.

The term dog-catcher, although in the neighborhood of Printing House square it bears a significance quite foreign to its etymology, in the simple acceptance of the word means only a man licensed by the Mayor to capture dogs found unmuzzled on the streets during the summer months. The dog-catching industry is pursued by virtue of a municipal ordinance, providing against the danger of hydrophobia from the bite of a mad dog. It provides that a license at the cost of $1 shall be taken out for every one of these animals kept within the city limits, and that they shall be securely muzzled and accompanied by some one responsible for their good behavior whenever they appear upon the streets. The ordinance also empowers the Mayor to employ a sufficient number of dog-catchers, who shall be designated by a badge, to be worn in some conspicuous place, and provided with proper appliances for capturing and conveying the animals, without injury, to the pound.

The dog-catcher's outfit consists principally of a horse and covered wagon, inclosed so as to prevent the escape of the captives, and provided with a vessel of fresh water. The catcher also must have chains and collars and a net very much like the instrument used for catching crabs. The net, however, is not popular with the skillful catcher, who usually picks up his victim if he be a small one, or claps a collar around his neck before the brute is aware of his danger. The catcher usually employs a driver, thus leaving himself free to beat up the game on either side of the route.

When a load has been procured he drives to the pound and delivers the prey to the Superintendent, who credits him with eighty cents a head. The catchers declare that the pay is entirely too small, and have been trying to have it increased. They say that the outlay is considerable, and the expense of keeping their horses and hiring additional help, as well as replacing lost articles, scarcely leaves a fair return for their labor. When the system was first put into operation a few years ago the crop of dogs was so abundant that each catch was good for fifty or sixty a day, and the catchers had what they called a picnic all summer, but now twenty dogs is a "good day's harvest." Instead of increasing the pay, however, the Mayor has decreased the number of catchers, so that now there are only seven who have licenses, whereas in the good old times when dogs were easy the fatality numbered as many as thirty.

The good effects of the ordinance may be seen in every quarter of the city, but especially in the reports from the hospitals. Several years ago the papers were full of the horrible details of death from hydrophobia, and the various recipes for curing the bite of a mad dog, from searing with a red hot iron to the more popular remedy of getting "paralyzed," were familiar to the most careless student of materia medica. The shout of "Mad dog" was sufficient to send weak-minded persons into convulsions, often as fatal as the venomous saliva, and many a poor brute was stoned and beaten to death if he were unfortunate enough to escape being shot by a policeman for some simple antic which brought down upon him the dark suspicions of mankind. Last year only two or three cases of hydrophobia from the bite of a dog were reported, and so far this year there has not been a single instance.—N. Y. Truth.

—A highway robber was nearly killed by dogs in Lebanon County, Pennsylvania, the other night. David J. McKinney was driving to his home, near Fredericksburg, when a thief stopped his team and pulled a pistol, with the demand: "Your money or your life!" McKinney had three mastiffs in his wagon and he set the dogs on the thief, and in a short time they completely stripped him of his clothing and bit him severely. McKinney was alone, and to save the thief from being killed outright he called off the dogs and drove away, leaving the desperado at the roadside. A party searched the woods subsequently, but could not find him.—Chicago Times.
